We understand that Mr. Thomas L. James is now of the opinion that, (1) while all the allegations in his recently filed "information" are true, (2) it is doubtful whether legal proof to sustain them can be had.

Among the allegations sworn to by Thomas L. James in that remarkable document, was one to the effect that "one A. C. Buell" had been employed to influence Members of Congress and Senators in order "to secure the passage of large and unjust appropriations," also that "Thomas J. Brady" had "used with" the said "one A. C. Buell" "large sums of money" for the purpose indicated.

We have heretofore remarked that this sworn statement of Thomas L. James is simple perjury. It has not the slightest foundation in fact. In letter and in spirit it is a bald, naked falsehood from beginning to end, having no motive but malice and no excuse but revenge. We therefore remark that Thomas L. James is a malicious perjurer.

Those words we understand to be actionable at law.

This is in the nature of "information." And not only is the allegation we make true, but we are ready, whenever called by proper authority, to furnish legal proof of the same.

And moreover, we will undertake to prove, by competent witnesses, upon the further question of general character, not only that Thomas L. James perjured himself in his sworn allegation concerning us, but also that he is a common and habitual liar; that since he has been Postmaster-General he has lied to Senators and Members of Congress in regard to matters of patronage—which we will prove by the testimony of the honorable gentleman to whom he has lied and by the circumstances of the cases that he has lied about; that he has lied to contractors or their attorneys concerning matters of business in his Department—which we will prove in a similar manner.

In short, we will prove not only that Thomas L. James is a perjurer in the specific matter relating to himself, but also that he is in general and at large a notorious, if not proverbial, prevaricator, falsifier and liar, in season and out of season, from mere force of habit and from utter mendacity of nature.

And on all these allegations, which we publish as of our own knowledge and in full view of their actionable character, we are ready to go to trial.

AFTER SUCH A WINTER as the last, and such a summer as the one we are just escaping from, no sensible objections can be raised if the approaching season should draw it mild.

THE "HOUSE OF LIFE," one of Mr. Rossetti's last poems, consists of one hundred and one sonnets in a sequence. It is to be feared that the general public will consider the work as a lingering sweetness a little too long drawn out.

THE WOMEN seem to have struck oil in wall-paper, or perhaps it would be better to say that in this particular line of their feet are on their native heath. At least, in designs for this favorite and fanciful fabric in New York, the prizes have recently all been taken by women, the originality and beauty of their designs being conspicuous.

AN ODD PECULIARITY in the mental constitution of mankind is the profound and lasting respect for averages. If, as is usual, you have always either too much or too little of anything and everything, then the average is just what you never do have. Yet all general statements of human affairs are presently stated just at the figure which is never realized.

LITURGY has an actor who plays Julius Caesar admirably, and moreover looks the character to perfection. Large numbers crowd to see him and make him the hero of the hour. Such an audience welcomed him with enthusiasm the other night, but in a revolution of feeling, shrieks of laughter rose—Caesar had inadvertently kept a pair of spectacles on his nose.

MEMBERS, PARNELL, KETTLE AND COMPANY exhibit a most complimentary confidence in their American brothers, when they commit them so freely as promising to pay as many millions as they have already furnished thousands to the cause of Ireland. It would take a pretty penny to meet this draft upon his patriotism and his pocket, and Pat in America has reason to observe that the price of potatoes has just gone up even in the land of the free and the home of the brave.

INDIANA appears to have a record and is proud of the same. For instance, the Fort Wayne Gazette observes:

We have had two speakers from Indiana, John W. Davis and Schuyler Colfax, who won golden opinions in the clinic. Both would add another laurel. He is a gentleman of fine presence, possessing a well-matured mind, and manners as easy as they are elegant. At home he is sociable to a fault, while at a foreign court where the fashion of a world was displayed he was a favorite, and the Emperor highly complimented him.

We don't recall the parliamentary fitness of Mr. Davis, but he happily expressed fact that Smiler Colfax "won golden opinions" in the chair will not be widely disputed. When Mr. Orth is elected Speaker, we trust the Venezuelan claim bill he given an advanced place on the docket. God-like might not object to a little of the golden in his.

NOTWITHSTANDING the brevity of life, we undertook to pursue with care the several columns which our esteemed contemporary, the Post, yesterday devoted to a hostile correspondence between Messrs. Mahone and Early and their friends, dated some years ago. As nearly as we can make it, the object of our esteemed contemporary in printing this correspondence is to show (1) that Mr. Early was a great fighter during the late unhappy civil strife; (2) that Mr. Mahone was not much of a fighter; (3) that Mr. Mahone personally superintended the publication of a biographical sketch calculated to extol immoderately the few feeble exploits that he did do, and to discredit him with divers and sundry great exploits that he did not do; (4) that in point of fact Early himself was the man who actually did most of the fighting, but that his extreme modesty prevented him from calling public attention to the matter until forced to do so by the arrogant pretensions of Mahone at his expense.

If we have fallen into any error in the above summary, we stand ready to correct the same upon sufficient information.

Well, what has all this got to do with the pending political campaign in Virginia anyhow? Do we understand our esteemed contemporary to hold that because Early was a better fighter for the Confederate cause than Mahone, therefore the Democratic ticket ought to be elected in Virginia for the reason that Early is a Democrat?

We do not believe that our esteemed contemporary would print a page of State correspondence merely for the sake of personally vindicating one Jubal Early in a private issue with one William Mahone. We assume, in common reason, that the design was public and political, and that the purpose was to strengthen the cause of Virginia Democracy, of which our E. C. is the organ.

We therefore, for the sake of argument, admit all the conclusions which Mr. Early and his friends would have the public deduce from the correspondence under discussion, which brings us to the burden of our theme, to wit: If there was nothing else to demonstrate the weakness of the so-called "Bourbon" cause in Virginia, the temper in which the pending canvass has been carried on would be ample.

The Old Virginia gentleman has not learned anything from the events of the last twenty years. He is now as he always was, pompous, verbose, opinionated and intolerant. He considers now as he always did that a divergence from his views is an outrage and a disputation of his pretensions an affront. His mode of punishing the first is now, as it always has been, social ostracism, and his method of resenting the latter is now, as it always has been, an appeal to pistols—with or without percussion caps—or to voluminous publication of beligerent correspondence; the one being ridiculous and the other a bore.

But there is no such thing in his system as calm, candid discussion of the issues at stake, for the enlightenment of the public.

To an external observer, the spectacle in Virginia is that of two bands of Bedouins fighting in the desert for the opportunity of plundering the next caravan that comes along. We desire to be fair, but it seems at this distance impossible to avoid the conclusion that the Old Virginia gentleman is the aggressor. If his antagonists meet him in the same spirit, it is probably because the O. V. G. has so firmly fixed the social code under which all things must be done in that region that the antagonist has no option. On the whole we should say that, irrespective of the merits of the question nominally in issue, the sympathies of the enlightened Northern public are decidedly with Mahone; not because he is a Readjuster; but because he has declared war against a code and system obnoxious to modern notions and obsolete in the light of modern sociology. And that is all there is to be said about it.

Source of Her Greatness.
Cincinnati Times-Star.

Since the campaign is over, and jumper after jumper are temporarily laid by, it is not amiss to recall the fact that the constitution of Ohio was principally written by Michael Baldwin in a glaze shop, with a whisky barrel for a table and a wine keg for a stool. History also records that Baldwin kept himself strongly fortified during his literary labors with toddies, rum punches and brandy slogs.

Highly Probable.
A Washington dispatch says that S. A. Brown, Chief Clerk of the State Department, has telegraphed to the press of the country that there is no foundation whatever for the report that any disturbances or differences of opinion existed at the town, but that all goes harmoniously and well. Probably we shall be told the next time that there was no Yorktown celebration at all.

No Dog Show in Maine.
A State law in Maine forbids deer to be hunted with dogs. In defiance of this rule, a party of Bostonians tried the experiment recently, to the indignation of the natives, who turned out and shot the dogs. The animals were very tame, and the hunters, who were very tame, lost their loss as best they can, for they can find no legal redress.

Only Old Fogies.
St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

It seems that no inducements were offered to Grant to attend the Yorktown celebration and the event has been made conspicuous by his absence. The fact is Grant has great contempt for Cornwalls and Washington as fighting men.

Will Become a Popular Amusement.
Atlanta Constitution.

We believe that dueling will become popular in all portions of the country when the people generally discover what an amiable amusement it is. It is neither a dangerous nor an exciting as a red hot game of base-ball.

Too Many Prominent Men.
Atlanta Constitution.

The collapse of the only "prize" game that would have secured the "famous" fruits of their victory at the last session of the Senate is an evidence that we have too many prominent men in the party.

Safe But Not Effective.
Chicago Times.

In Philadelphia some 1,500 Irishmen have burned Gladstone in effigy. Just how the cause of freedom in Ireland is to be aided by such a demonstration, the howling derision of those who participate did not stop to explain.

The Value of Silence.
Boston Herald.

Mr. Arthur knows how to hold his tongue, and the people in Chicago have eaten up thousands of bushels of St. Louis corn and oats during the past month. At least the boys say so.

Chicago Bear Diet.
As a rule bears confine themselves to a diet of tender herbs, honey and small animals, but those bears in Chicago have eaten up thousands of bushels of St. Louis corn and oats during the past month. At least the boys say so.

Boys on the Treasury.
It costs France as much to kill an Arab as it does America to abolish an Apache.
